Studies show that music education can dramatically contribute to a child's ability to learn, think and create. Much like participating in a sport, music lessons can teach discipline and team building skills. Music lessons, however, offer several distinct benefits, including a more flexible practice schedule and the ability to continue playing long into adulthood and old age. It may provide a more realistic career path and a great opportunity to earn a lifetime of part time income. As a parent, you are in a unique position to contribute to your child's success both now and in the future. The gift of music can help you deliver!

What method books and materials are used in lessons?

There are a number of effective method books and materials being used today. Appropriateness depends on the student's age, instrument and ability. There is a variety of books available. Besides their standard method books, students are encouraged to own staff paper, a metronome, CDs and appropriate music software to provide additional challenges.

Speaking of practicing, how much and how often should my child be practicing?

The amount your child should practice depends largely on her ability and age. For a very young beginner, we suggest practicing at the most, 15-20 minutes a day, five days a week. For an older, more experienced student, a half hour to an hour (or more!) may be in order. Don't try to make your child sit down for the entire amount of time. Better results are often achieved if practicing is broken down into smaller chunks- perhaps once before school and once after dinner. Maintaining a regular routine also helps...

DRUMS & PERCUSSION

MICHAEL BUONO has been playing drums for 40 years and around Maui for the last 18. He is a top notch pro having toured and recorded with such luminaries as Dolly Parton, Quincy Jones and The Chipmunks! Mike has been teaching drums for the last 10 years and is very proud that some of his students have themselves gone on to play professionally. Michael teaches the way he plays, which is to understand any style well. His resume reads like a BLUE BOOK of American Music. How about The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Paul Williams, Larry Coryell, Jimmy Buffet, Bud Shanks, and Sarah Vaughn just to name a few of the great artists he has worked with. His drumming is seemingly effortless, however succinct – keeping it all together and still creating tension and release. 875-9011 mphbuono1@gmail.com

MIKE BURKE started drumming professionally at age 14 in the San Francisco Bay Area and has been teaching since 1984. Since then, he has enjoyed a very rewarding career, performing full-time all over the U.S. and Canada including 10 years in Las Vegas.
